

ONLINWORKINGATHOME.COM

ONLINE FREELANCE JOB FINDER

25 ONLINE FREELANCE JOB BOARDS

With years of experience as an online freelancer, I've learned different portals suit different skills.

You can search these sites for freelance work to suit your freelancer skills:

Upwork
Gorkana
Gigbucks
Fiverr
LinkedIn
Freelancer
iFreelance
People per hour
FreedomwithWriting
Microworkers
FiverUp
Zeerk
99Designs
PhotographyJobsCentral
Guru
Pro-Blogger Jobs
BloggingPro
Craigslist
Indeed
ServiceScape
FreelanceWritingGigs
PaidtoBlog
Contently
Remotive
Worldwide101

The benefits you gain as a freelancer are choosing the hours you work, deciding on your rate of pay and doing the tasks you enjoy.

To start have a look at the freelancing sites.

Checkout the Transferable Skills Checklist and consider your expertise to put out into the marketplace.

You can do this today, right now and get started.

Fiverr is a massive freelancing site with jobs costing $5. As the size of your job increases, the price increases.

Don't get put off by the very low rate paid for your skills. There is more to this strategy. The first has been mentioned, about the price rises as the task increases. For example, an editor may price a job as $5 for the first 250 words and price increases with the word count.

Fiverr is also used by freelancers to raise awareness of their business, it's called lead generation to bigger jobs, and you can learn more here, Online Freelancing With Fiverr.

You can buy and sell services on these freelancing sites. It's the place I go to for a variety of tasks.

You can be a freelancer yourself where you get paid for jobs using your skills. And, you can employ freelancers to build your business.

You can also be a "middleman" where you source good online freelancers for other people in business.

"You have more skills to freelance than you realise"